Queens, Courts, and Crowns add sparkle

With each climactic announcement, the tense expectations became realities for three Northwood queens. Football Homecoming in October saw the addition of floats as the queer candidates and court arrived in their convertible. Following the introduction of each girl, Tammy Sheets was honored as this year's Homecoming queen. As Valentine's Day approached, Basketball Sweetheart festivities were planned. Girls holding palm branches and the reading of a poem added to the half-time basketball ceremony when Jenny France became sweetheart. Competition for Junior Miss took place earlier in the year and saw several seniors competing for the title. Michele Miller was crowned Junior Miss and later traveled to the state competition. Each ceremony added its own color and mood, which will long be remembered by many.

Goldenaires travel to various performances

Goldenaires consist of a small group of singing seniors that perform in a variety of programs throughout the season. A junior Goldenaires also exists but this group is responsible for fewer performances. Members of Goldenaires spend extra hours in their weekly, evening rehearsals and perform many popular numbers. The Goldenaires were also a colorful part of both winter and spring choir concerts.

Among the many programs presented in the new auditorium was the spring drama presentation, "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown." Both band and choir departments also used the new facilities in their winter and spring concerts. In addition to these performances, the auditorium was used in various assemblies throughout the year.

"Wanderers of the World"

Stars, woods and strolling violin players greeted prom goers when the junior class presented an atmosphere titled: "Wanderers of the World." After the traditional banquet was served, Liz Weldy and Rex Holmes were honored as Prom Queen and King. Everyone then delighted to the magic of a guest prestidigitator in the auditorium. Both movies and dancing occupied the evening for the prom people until midnight and dawn ended the romance and began the memories of this year's prom.

... to help us live through today.

In spite of the various difficulties which postponed Baccalaureate services and caused the combination of Class Night with Commencement, the class of 1972 received their diplomas Thursday, May 25, in the high school gymnasium. After the traditional processional, "Pomp and Circumstance", the various awards and recognitions were announced followed by the speaker and presentation of diplomas. Senior choir and band members participated in a final performance with the groups on different nights. Blue and white were chosen as the class colors with the class motto "We hold hope for tomorrow to help live through today".

ATHLETICS

NW sports combine individual efforts

From the first football game, through winter basketball and wrestling, to baseball and track, NorthWood sports combined both individual and team efforts in striving toward many goals. Two seasonal sports banquets honored deserving athletes throughout the year. In combination with the game efforts of the athletes, cheerleaders also helped strengthen Panther loyalty and school spirit. NorthWood athletics enlisted the support to athletes, cheerleaders, and many fans in the year's schedules of games and events.

Baseball team strives for winning season

With a spring schedule record of 6-10, the baseball team participated in an active season. Members of NorthWood's golf team include: Karl Kindig, Blake Hepler, Jim Miller, John Stalnaker, Steve Lentz, Brian Hoffer, Rex Pippen, and Roger Stouder. At the conclusion of the school year, the golf team held a record of 9-9.

The Panthers were 4 - 3 in the NLC and placed fourth. NorthWood and its 18 seniors bowed out in glory by destroying Goshen to highlight the season. Post-season awards went to Rick Fisher as Team Captain, Most Valuable Player to Rex Holmes, and John Hochstetler received the Mental Attitude Award.

Panthers reign as NLC champs

Despite finishing with a mediocre 10-11 season record, NorthWood racked up its first NLC championship with a 6-1 record under new head coach Rick Bowen. The Panthers also won their own Holiday Tournament. It could be described as an up and down season. Victories over Plymouth, Rochester, and Wawasee highlighted the campaign. NorthWood was led in scoring by Steve Reed. Rex Holmes grabbed the most rebounds and was co-leader of assists with Phil Lechlitner. Losing 4 of 5 starters, NorthWood will be greatly helped by the Junior Varsity who also had a good season.

Gymnasts compete on varsity level

NorthWood had a varsity gymnastics team for the first time this year. The Panthers competed in the Heritage and the Concord Invationals. NorthWood also participated in the Concord Sectional. Barry Geyer and Jim Charles won the first two varsity letters. The gymnastics team graduates Geyer only. The team is composed mostly of underclassmen, promising a very competitive team in the near future. Gymnastics is an interesting and entertaining sport and should not be passed by as a spectator sport.

Wrestlers hurt

Hurt by graduation losses and inexperience, NorthWood's wrestlers posted a 3-8 season record. Credit should be given to Don Marshall, Rick Hollar, and Dave Mattern who came out for the first time and still wrestled varsity. Jim Huff, Rex Forrest, and John Hochstetler completed 4 years of rough competition. Russ Shaw turned in an excellent 11-0-1 regular season record. He also placed first in the conference meet. Much credit should be given to all wrestlers being in such a rugged sport.

National Honor Society inducts members in Spring

Membership into National Honor Society is limited to a certain percentage of juniors and seniors meeting set requirements each year. New members were inducted into the society this year at an evening program in April. Four previously elected seniors presented speeches prior to the presentation of certificates and pins to the new members. The club promoted the future purchasing of a school sign as well as ushering at the spring and fall Civic Theater productions.

Student Council fights for students' rights

This year the student council worked for more student's rights. The apple machine and juke-box are two examples of their good work. A big issue this year, juniors and seniors did not have to be at school during first and last hour study halls. Again this year the student council supervised homecoming activities and the election of class officers.

Speech and Drama organizes new productions

The Drama Club is open to anyone interested in dramatic productions. Members have an opportunity to act, build sets, put on make-up, sew wardrobe, sell tickets, direct and produce. Two productions are presented each year, one in the fall and one in the spring. This year the club presented Woody Allen's "Don't Drink The Water" and Charles Schultz's "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown."

Campus Life meets Monday nights

Homes of Campus Life members proved to be the scene of activity when the group held its weekly meetings. Subjects of the gatherings varied from impact to insight meetings and a number of area activities were also held. The year began with a Burger Bash followed by Scream in the Dark during Halloween and a youth convention at Christmas time. Campus Life has no definite membership because the meetings are always opened to any interested student.

speech communicated in today's world

The ability to communicate, which is one emphasis of Speech and English classes, is of constant importance in today's modern world. The ability to read, write, and respond is one of the many aims in these courses. English students remember their research papers, vocabulary words and book reports. Speech classes practice the art of effective public speaking and various topics were assigned for speech subjects. All of the activities of English and Speech help the students to prepare for the future and relate better with the present.

Languages translate into activity areas

Spanish and German classes composed the foreign language curriculum this year. Beginning classes for the first year students introduced the basics of these languages, while many students continued their fluency of language in the advanced classes. With the help of visual aids and language labs, the classes pursued its variety of yearly activities.

Social Studies involve various areas

From freshman health and civics classes to the required government and economics of the senior year, students are involved in the many varied areas of the social studies department. With subject choices ranging from history to sociology, students can participate in any area of their choice.

Math and Science—the key to a new world

The expansion of math and science facilities at NorthWood has brought many students into the departments. With two algebras and general math to choose from, freshmen can get the math education they want. Geometry, algebra II, trig., and introductory analysis enable the math major to prepare for any college. The science department also offers four years for the college bound student as well as others. Although biology is required of sophomores, it can be taken by freshmen, so they can take chemistry I, biology II, chemistry II, and physics. With physical science, they make a science department to match any.

Students confront the business world

Art may appear to be all fun, but actually it also requires some hard work. First and second year art students study a variety of art areas in attempt to learn the basics of the subject. The advanced courses in art are Ceramics & Crafts and Paints & Prints. Many of this year's art students experimented with macreme or tried acrylic paints for the first time. Block prints, pencil drawings and clay mugs also appeared throughout the year. From time to time the work of various art classes was displayed in the halls giving other students a chance to see the art work.

Clicking typewriters, busy adding machines and balance sheets are only a few of the every day happenings in many business classes. A student may choose to take business courses, either in preparation for a future job or for practical business knowledge. This year's classes experienced the usual assignments, such as filing and timed writings, but concluded the year with a better understanding of the modern business world.

Home Ec. department offers new courses

Home Economics this year displayed two new courses in addition to other class offerings. For the girls, creative foods and family living was made available which proved to be a successful class. The guys got a chance for domestic learning this year, when a bachelor's economics course was introduced. Bachelor's home ec. students managed to turn out some tasty dishes while enrolled in this class. Skills such as nutrition, sewing and child care were also taught in the basic home economics courses.

Agriculture students learn modern methods

NorthWood offers four years of educational agriculture. The program is based on study of advanced methods to develop better farming techniques. Although much time is spent in the classroom learning basic facts, there are several field trips during the year for students to add to their knowledge. Subjects studied include: seeds, livestock, machinery, crops, weather, and methods. They learn the ways that are practiced locally as well as new innovations being tested elsewhere. The program adds to basic knowledge and practical experience, up to date methods which will enable students to produce larger and better crops each year.

Industrial Arts teach practical applications

The shop department is constantly growing and improving in Northwood's expanded facilities. Offerings have spread out to cover about all basic fields in industrial arts as well as to many advanced courses. With expansion has also come increased interest, especially from the girls, whose number grows each year. Three woodworking courses and building trades provide background in creating in the shop and in following blueprints. Mechanical and architectural drawing combine to prepare the student for making blueprints. Besides the traditional shop courses, Northwood has graphic arts and basic metal, electric, and auto for students. Students wishing to advance themselves in the latter three can take electronics, machine shop, or auto mechanics.

Physical Education: survival of the fittest

Although it is required for freshmen and sophomores, physical education classes are offered for everyone. It gives an opportunity for students to develop physical being and character. There is participation in such sports as basketball, volleyball, ping-pong, badminton and softball. Students also remember performing gymnastic routines and running laps.

career center trains NW students

In its first year of activity, the career center opened its doors to many NorthWood students. Those attending the center spent their mornings in Elkhart, and then returned to school for the afternoon. A variety of useful trades and skills gained by the students was one result of the year's activities.

NorthWood greets Heiko and Angelika

Last school year I had the pleasure to be as an exchangee on the NorthWood High School and to experience an American high school year. When I came to the states in July, I did not know what to expect in school because I only saw a picture of it and I think that the students and teachers make up the school and the building is just a shell around it. By the time a couple school weeks went by I really felt that I was a student and no longer a guest. At this point I would like to thank all of you students for the way you treated me as just another student and I want to thank all of the faculty members, especially those who had so much patience with me while trying to teach me history, math or whatever it was, for accepting me as a student. You have really been great! I hope I'll be hearing from you sometime, from those who are in college now or from those who are still in school. My address is Heiko Jansen, 221 Jtzehoe, Gartensh 18, West-Germany. I hope I could see all of you sometime in the future. Thanks, Heiko.

Hello, NorthWood! Remember me? I'm Angie, your exchange student from Bremen, Germany. I had a nice time here at NorthWood. This year was one of my greatest experiences I ever had. I clearly remember the very first week in school, everything was so exciting, so different from what I was used to in Germany. I hardly knew any of the students, and I had difficulty with the language. All this made the beginning kind of hard. But ever since I had got the hang of it, school became pretty much routine. I met many nice kids, and I enjoyed talking with them. I want to thank everybody, students and those who keep the school going, for all their help and cooperation. But most of all I want to express thanks to my host family Mr. & Mrs. Harold L. Berkey who shared their home with me, and made my stay enjoyable. Now, coming to an end, I want to say that NorthWood is a pretty nice school, even though there are shortcomings. Listen Kids! School in America is so much easier than in Germany! Therefore be happy with what you've got! Yours, with my best wishes for the future, Angelika Krause 28 Bremen 54, Konsul-Cassel-Str. 13, West-Germany.

Seniors reach to the future

Seniors remember ... that final year ... the happiness of ending high school, but sadness of leaving old friends ... the first senior picture party ... voting on graduation announcements ... buying their own yearbooks ... trying to find out the prom theme ... senior day ... government and economics ... the oldest ones at school ... the mixed emotions and expectations of graduation ... beginning a new life.

The end result ...
 a more complete being ...
 fulfillment of expectations
 ... building of new hopes ... the last report card ... handing in books ... cleaning out lockers
 ... that old torn notebook ...
 saying good-bye
 to friends ... last minute details ... the smell of summer in the air ... the approach of graduation ... announcements, senior day, caps and gowns ...

a new beginning ...
 looking ahead to the future ...
 planning for next year
 ... remembering the past year ... all of the excitement, insight, frustration and happiness ... emerging as a more mature individual—
 the achievement of growth.
